

Tania Shenstone

Friday 28 November 2008

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to you and placing my letter on Tania's personal letterhead at your request as Tania's work with me was through my previous employer and not my current one, hence I can't use either of their letterheads to write this reference on.

In my previous role as publicist for Channel Seven Perth (Australia), I employed Tania Shenstone on different occasions through her agency to act out specific roles to aid in our program launching to media.

One such role was as a nurse when we launched Series One of Grey's Anatomy and Tania was every bit the part as she carried out her 'nursing' duties taking the pulse and temperature of media and opinion shapers and writing prescriptions and the like as we visited them at their respective outlets.

The other occasion I employed Tania was to play a dead body at a program launch for an Australia TV series entitled City Homicide. Tania's role was to play a dead body in an ally that was roped off etc with forensic police surveying the scene for clues. She was so good in fact that even some people who were playing forensic police commented on how 'dead' she really looked!

I would recommend Tania as a committed, professional, driven actor who desires nothing more than to excel at her craft. Please don't hesitate to contact me for further information.

Kind regards
